Global Sources supplier rankings

Suppliers are ranked using a 6-star ranking system. Companies with a higher star ranking provide more business information and verification reports on their Global Sources online homepages. Suppliers rated 5 or 6 stars have a Credit Check report from First Advantage or Sino-Trust and a Supplier Capability Assessment report provided by Bureau Veritas online. The rankings are correct at the time of publication and may be subject to change.

NOTE TO READERS: All prices quoted in this magazine are in US dollars, unless otherwise specified. Benefit from our 22 years of industry experience

We possess a 9,000-ton aluminum extruder – one of the largest in mainland China

With 22 years of industry experience, you won't need to go anywhere else for your aluminum profile needs. Housing advanced production lines from Japan and Italy, our three factories – totaling one million square-meters – are manned by more than 5,000 employees. We operate according to ISO 9001:2000 and ISO 14001:2004 guidelines. Combine that with the many different specifications we offer, and it becomes apparent why buyers in North and South America, Europe, the Middle East, Africa, Oceania and Southeast Asia source from us.

We offer profiles for windows, doors, curtain walls and heat sinks, as well as models for transportation, electronics, marine, aerospace and other industries. To produce such a range at the high quality level needed for these applications, we have invested in a 9,000-ton aluminum extruder – one of the largest in mainland China. Our products can be anodized and powder- or fluorocarbon-coated, as well as integrated with a variety of other features according to your requirements, with up to 20,000 metric tons produced monthly.

And with 200 QC staff members who average five years of industry experience, we not only offer variety and volume production, but also high-quality products. WPC flooring: Product gallery, supplier profiles, buyer demand trends, importing guide

WPC flooring endures wear and tear

Suppliers offer models that do not crack or warp over time, and withstand moisture and UV rays.

The latest wood-plastic composite flooring from China incorporates chemical additives that enhance durability against UV rays, water, moisture and molds. Many do not crack and warp over time. The said properties make the products good for use indoors and outdoors. Some are designed for wet or moist places such as bathrooms and pools.

WPC models come in the form of tiles and decking boards that are easy to install and maintain. Many variants do not require glue and paint while some have interlocking sides for quick attachment.

In terms of color, shades of brown and gray are dominant. Some releases mimic hardwood with sanded or grained surfaces, and wood marks or patterns. A few resemble bricks or stones.

The products in this gallery represent current trends in WPC flooring.

Importing WPC decking & flooring from China

WPC flooring is currently a trending product among importers. As in the case of other building materials, there are strict regulations in place – regulations which far from all China manufacturers are compliant with. Besides, there is a wide product quality disparity between different suppliers. In this article we explain which product specifications you need to keep track of, why you should not rely on “warranties” and which product certification standards your WPC decking must be in compliance with.

Product specifications

WPC stands for wood-plastic composite. Basically, the material is made up of wood flour and plastic such as PVC, HDPE, and PP. Wood flour and HDPE is the most common mix used by China manufacturers. A WPC decking product specification shall at a minimum contain the following:

- Size (e.g. 150x25mm)
- Length (e.g. 2.2m or 2.9m)
- Color (e.g. Black, gray, olive green, red wood, coffee, wood)
- Material components (e.g. 55 percent wood power+35 percent HDPE+10 percent chemical additives)
- Surface (e.g. Smooth, brushed, scratched, grain or sanded)
- Lifetime (e.g. 25 years)
- Usage (e.g. Outdoor or indoor)
- Anti-slip (Yes/No)
- Anti-UV (Yes/No)
- Water-resistant (Yes/No)
- Weather resistance (e.g. suitable from –40 to 60C)
- Flame retardance (e.g. German B1 standard)

The quality of WPC decking is largely defined by the materials. A higher wood flour content tends to increase the durability and the price. Keep in mind that it’s up to you to tell the supplier which product specifications your WPC flooring shall be manufactured according to.

Warranty

Most China WPC flooring manufacturers list a warranty time in the product description. Keep in mind that a “warranty” can basically mean anything in this context. There’s no international framework in place that regulates the term “warranty.” In the world of international trade, you are essentially on your own – unless you and the supplier sign a contract that clearly defines the warranty terms (among other things). This definition shall answer these:

1. What shall happen in case a defective product is discovered after the products arrive in the port of destination? (It’s not realistic to inspect the quality of every single unit before the shipment)
2. For how many months or years is the buyer allowed to claim compensation for defective products?
3. Shall the buyer return the defective units to the manufacturer in China? (If yes, who shall pay for the return freight?)
4. In case replacement units shall be delivered to the buyer, who shall pay for freight cost?
5. What shall happen in case the product fails to comply with the relevant product safety standards in the buyer’s country?
6. What is the definition of a defective product? (e.g. products that are noncompliant with the agreed upon product specifications and certification standards)
7. For which types of product defects is the warranty valid? (e.g. scratches and color variations)
8. How shall defective products be compensated? (Remake, repair or refund)

Even if your supplier is accommodating and provides you with clear warranty terms, never rely on this as a guarantee for stress-free replacements. The best way to minimize your risks is always to verify that the WPC flooring is compliant with your product specifications and relevant certification standards BEFORE it’s shipped from China. This can only be done through quality inspection combined with a batch sample lab test.

Product certification – National requirements and compliance testing

Most products are regulated by at least one product certification safety standard.

EU

Wood polymer composites are required to be compliant with EN 15534. This standard is also a part of the CE marking directive. Since WPC decking also contains a number of chemical additives, we also recommend importers to test the product for REACH compliance.

US

WPC decking sold in the US is required to be compliant with ASTM D7032.

Australia & New Zealand

All types of flooring sold in Australia must be compliant with the AS/NZS 4586:2004 Standard Slip Resistance Classification. Due to a high risk of forest fires, WPC decking sold in Australia must also be compliant with local fire retardancy standards, such as BAL 29 (bushfire resistance).

Fire resistance

Due to the plastic and chemical content, WPC decking is a potential fire hazard. There is a wide range of various fire retardant standards (most are local) such as B1, B2 and M1.

Most China manufacturers are NOT compliant with western standards

Keep in mind that a number of suppliers listed on certain sourcing sites are mainly selling their products in the domestic China market. These suppliers are in general not manufacturing products that are in compliance with EU, US and Australia product certification standards.

Yet, most of them do not hesitate to sell their products to buyers in these countries. Keep in mind that the importer is always responsible for ensuring compliance. This responsibility cannot be shifted to the China manufacturer. Importing noncompliant WPC flooring is illegal, and may result in forced recall or even fines.

Lab testing

I strongly recommend that a sample of each product batch is lab tested for compliance with the relevant standards. Keep in mind that the tested sample must come from the batch that has been specifically manufactured for you. Testing a sample from a previous batch is useless since it doesn’t verify the compliance of the actual products you’re about to import.

WPC decking prices

WPC flooring can be manufactured according to a wide range of standards and specifications. Product certification compliance, dimensions, lifetime and surface treatments all have a major impact on the product price. However, the most important factor is the material composition. As I stated earlier in this article, a higher wood flour content increase the WPC decking durability and therefore results in a price increase.

A common mistake is to select a supplier solely based on the product price. In November 2013, we made a price research among 24 leading WPC decking manufacturers in China. What we found was that the price difference among these suppliers were huge – the lowest quoted price per square meter being $4.4, and the highest $33.

There’s a logical explanation to this. Some of these suppliers are primarily selling their products on the domestic China market. That certainly is not implying that those suppliers are “bad.” However, a product that is manufactured for the China market is certainly not made in compliance with EU, US and Australian product certification or fire retardant standards. Apart from the issue of legal compliance, a product that is considered to be of “good quality” in a China construction materials wholesale market might be considered junk in Sydney or San Diego.

What I’m trying to say here is that you can’t compare prices between different suppliers unless you know which specifications the pricing is based on. Only compare the pricing of products that are of an equal quality standard.

LED faucet indicates water temperature

Kaiping Tenfe Bathroom Co. Ltd (mainland China)

Product details

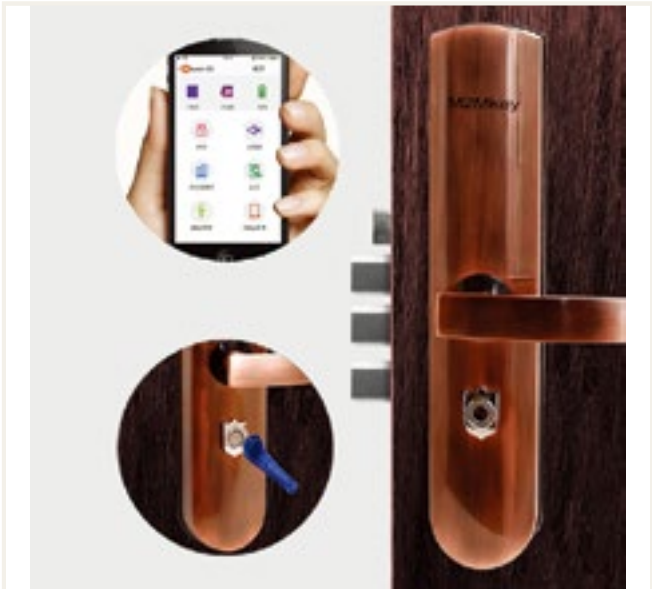

Model:	L1004
Launched / upgraded:	2015
MOQ:	200 units
Lead time:	25 to 30 days

Kaiping Tenfe Bathroom Co. Ltd's model L1004 bathroom faucet indicates water temperature via its LEDs. The model's glass plate turns blue, green and red when the water temperature is at a 0 to 30, 31 to 40 and 41 to 50 C range, respectively. This also helps protect users from electric shock. The faucet does not need any power supply. A built-in magnet generates power by water flow when the valve is on.

The LED bathroom faucet is made of brass and coated with chrome. Its pipes are compatible with 3.4 to 4.4cm-diameter sinks. Product dimensions are 200x160mm.

Uniquely molded cases for any application

After 23 years in the industry, we're still going strong. Tools, cosmetics, jewelry items, guns and laptops – you name it and we will find you a matching case in our comprehensive selection. To ensure our units are more durable than competing models made of PP, we use high-quality aluminum and ABS that is less brittle. We also utilize a special molding process that enables us to craft every case from a single piece of material. And since our 100 QC inspectors conduct vibration and drop tests, we guarantee that each unit can withstand up to 35 kilograms of weight.

Over 100 new models released annually

Our 15 R&D engineers keep up with the latest trends by attending international tradeshow. Thus, we can constantly offer unique designs by adding more than 100 new goods to our collection each year.

Above-average customization that keeps customers satisfied

We can create cases according to your specific color, size or style requirements. To ensure accurate renditions of your designs, we use advanced aluminum processing, punching and extruding machines from Taiwan. We also pay personal visits to our clients so that we can get a feel for what will sell well in their target markets. After conducting surveys, we have learned that 98 percent of our clients are satisfied with our products and services. Partner with one of the earliest manufacturers of ABS cases by contacting us now.

4 telltale signs of a bad supplier

Have you ever worked with a supplier that just did not seem to have your best interests at heart? Maybe there was poor communication between you and the factory. Or, maybe your supplier hit you with one excuse after another to explain poor product quality or a delayed shipment. If you have had experience with either situation, you probably wish you would have known how to avoid it.

No supplier relationship is perfect, and there will always be hiccups along the way. However, you may want to think twice if you repeatedly encounter one or more “red” flags. Look out for the following telltale signs of a bad supplier:

Telltale Sign #1: The story is always changing

First it was a delay due to an issue at a raw material supplier. Now it is a government-mandated brownout to conserve electricity. The next thing you know, production grinds to a halt because one worker hurt himself using a saw. All of these examples are, in fact, real. But you are not wrong in being skeptical if they occur repeatedly and affect your shipping schedule.

Telltale Sign #2: Your supplier is never wrong

You might hear that the increasingly poor quality you have noticed over the last five shipments is just your imagination and the result of your quality inspectors being too strict. You may be told to ignore the fact that you have documented an increase in returns from your top customers. You may hear the excuse that there must be an error with your data because the supplier’s quality remains stable. All of these are the supplier’s attempt to sidestep responsibility and put the blame else. Hold your supplier accountable for quality fade or other issues. Avoid working with a factory that would not take responsibility.

Telltale Sign#3: Your supplier knowingly arranges inspection based on false information

A common example of false information occurs when you or a third-party schedule inspection for a certain date, only to arrive at the factory and find the product is not ready for inspection. The supplier booked the inspection knowing the factory would not be ready. This is generally done in an attempt to avoid the inspection process and is a HUGE red flag that indicates you need to inspect the order before shipping. If this happens repeatedly, then you run serious risk as an importer.

Telltale Sign #4: You are told the inspection company did a bad job. However, your supplier cannot provide any specific details explaining what that really means.

It is common practice for suppliers to call inspectors incompetent or question their integrity. In most cases, you will find this coincides with an inspection report outlining a long list of quality issues. The only thing that might be more frustrating than a failed inspection report is to hear that the inspector did not know what he was doing or that he asked for money in exchange for going easy on the factory. If the factory is light on details, then your supplier is probably just trying to draw your attention away from the real issues. Insist that the factory make future complaints by phone while the inspector is still on-site. This is the only way to really investigate the issue.

Conclusion

If these examples remind you of a current supplier, then start to protect yourself by visiting the factory regularly in person. This allows you to see things for yourself and assess the situation. Your supplier will be less likely to lie to you in person if you make regular visits. Do not forget that there are plenty of reputable suppliers out there with which you could be working. There are also companies that can help you identify them if you cannot do this yourself.
