Global Sources supplier rankings

Suppliers are ranked using a 6-star ranking system. Companies with a higher star ranking provide more business information and verification reports on their Global Sources online homepages. Suppliers rated 5 or 6 stars have a Credit Check report from First Advantage or Sino-Trust and a Supplier Capability Assessment report provided by Bureau Veritas online. The rankings are correct at the time of publication and may be subject to change.

Benefit from our 22 years of industry experience

We possess a 9,000-ton aluminum extruder – one of the largest in mainland China

With 22 years of industry experience, you won't need to go anywhere else for your aluminum profile needs. Housing advanced production lines from Japan and Italy, our three factories – totaling one million square-meters – are manned by more than 5,000 employees. We operate according to ISO 9001:2000 and ISO 14001:2004 guidelines. Combine that with the many different specifications we offer, and it becomes apparent why buyers in North and South America, Europe, the Middle East, Africa, Oceania and Southeast Asia source from us.

We offer profiles for windows, doors, curtain walls and heat sinks, as well as models for transportation, electronics, marine, aerospace and other industries. To produce such a range at the high quality level needed for these applications, we have invested in a 9,000-ton aluminum extruder – one of the largest in mainland China. Our products can be anodized and powder- or fluorocarbon-coated, as well as integrated with a variety of other features according to your requirements, with up to 20,000 metric tons produced monthly.

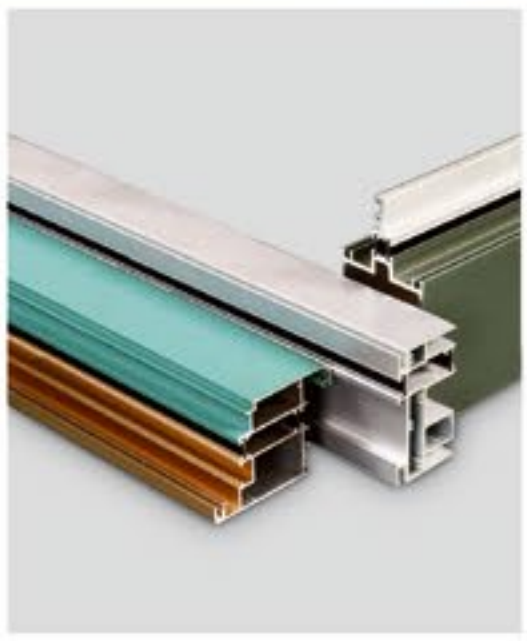

And with 200 QC staff members who average five years of industry experience, we not only offer variety and volume production, but also high-quality products. Due to our efforts, we have been recognized as a China Top Brand and China Well-known Trademark, and some of the world's tallest buildings feature our products. Smart door locks: Product gallery, supplier profiles, buyer demand trends

Biometrics top smart door lock feature

With fingerprint and face recognition, and app compatibility, models can identify authorized users more accurately.

With keys, access cards and passwords at risk of being lost or copied, makers have made smart door locks 'smarter' by adding the capability to recognize authorized users' fingerprints and faces. A number of releases can also be synced with mobile phone apps for remote monitoring of status and control. Adding, deleting and freezing users, and checking opening records are administrator tasks done easily on smartphones.

This does not mean though that typical unlocking mechanisms are left behind in terms of improvement. Some makers designed units that hide combinations within other characters to prevent these being copied, conceal password panels and card readers, and sound alarms when entry fails for a number of times.

The products in this gallery represent current trends in smart door locks.

Multiple ways to unlock

Alpha Corp.'s Electronic Lock model can be opened through fingerprints, tag keys, door cards and passwords. Also included in the package are two dimple keys for emergency use. This door lock adopts a CL-LE lock case. FOB price is $438.

RFID card door lock for hotels

Deluns Technology International Co. Ltd's DLS2000-D6 model is a door lock that uses RFID to read cards. It is designed for hotels. The model is made of 304 stainless steel and weighs of 2.8kg. Both silver and gold variants are available. FOB price is $33.

ZigBee smart door lock

Nanjing Ebdel Technological Development Co. Ltd's model BY-GHT01 third-generation smart door lock uses ZigBee technology. To unlock the model, users can use cards, their fingerprints, passwords, keys and mobile phones. Remote monitoring and control are supported by the lock. The battery that powers the product is good for 18,000 lock-unlock cycles. The door lock has backup power for emergency situations. It is quoted at $300.

Comes with a remote control

With a remote control, Shenzhen Landuntong Intelligent Equipment Co. Ltd's model LD-CR919 smart door lock can be controlled by users within 100m. The remote control also manages door cards. The door lock features a failure locking alarm to remind users to close the door. For an MOQ of 10 sets, the FOB price is $339.

RFID card, fingerprint panel lock

Suitable for school-use, Shenzhen RDM Tag Master Industry Co. Ltd's model D7020 zinc alloy smart panel lock identifies RFID cards and fingerprints. It adopts a reversible handle for entry from the left or right side. The unit sets automatically alarms after three times of failed entry. Mechanical keys and a wireless module are optional. MOQ is 100 units while price is $200.

Recognizes passwords, fingerprints

Shenzhen Yuankun Lock Co. Ltd offers the smart door lock YK Series model. Users can unlock the door via passwords and/or their fingerprints or keys. The door lock operates from -20 to 70 C with humidity between 10 and 90 percent. It lasts 10,000 cycles.

An'hui Shingborg Electronic Technology Co. Ltd released Halo, the world's first smart towel rack that can answer calls and play music while keeping towels clean.

The smart towel rack uses a built-in Bluetooth chipset, microphone and loudspeaker. Bluetooth is activated through the product's touch panel. An'hui Shingborg focuses on designing and manufacturing daily-use home products. The company owns three brands.

Faucet adjusts, maintains water temperature

Beijing Loongson Technology Co. Ltd (mainland China)

Product details

Model:	Mytap LX-186-13
Launched / upgraded:	May 2015
Lead time:	25 days

Users can adjust the hotness or coldness of flowing water that runs out of Beijing Loongson Technology Co. Ltd's model Mytap LX-186-13 faucet by turning its temperature controller. The temperature controller at the top of the faucet then keeps water temperature at the set level.

Another switch on the model's 360-degree rotating spout shuts off the water flow at a press of a finger. This helps conserve up to 80 percent water consumption. The 248x110mm magnalium alloy faucet is lead-free and has a multilayer anodized surface.

Smart pot waters plants automatically

Hebei Spectree Biotechnology Co. Ltd (mainland China)

Hebei Spectree Biotechnology Co. Ltd released recently the model Uni smart plant pot that nourishes plants automatically.

The pot makes water flow from its 230mL storage tank to its capsule-like compartments that hold the plants. It has a sensor that monitors constantly the water level. The sensor gives red, green and blue light signals to notify users that the amount of water is low, appropriate and high, respectively.

Aside from watering the plants, the pot provides proper lighting. It integrates a light source that detects environment lighting conditions and automatically adjusts the intensity. The product's maximum power is 5W.

Uniquely molded cases for any application
After 23 years in the industry, we're still going strong. Tools, cosmetics, jewelry items, guns and laptops – you name it and we will find you a matching case in our comprehensive selection. To ensure our units are more durable than competing models made of PP, we use high-quality aluminum and ABS that is less brittle. We also utilize a special molding process that enables us to craft every case from a single piece of material. And since our 100 QC inspectors conduct vibration and drop tests, we guarantee that each unit can withstand up to 35 kilograms of weight.

Over 100 new models released annually
Our 15 R&D engineers keep up with the latest trends by attending international tradeshows. Thus, we can constantly offer unique designs by adding more than 100 new goods to our collection each year.

Above-average customization that keeps customers satisfied
We can create cases according to your specific color, size or style requirements. To ensure accurate renditions of your designs, we use advanced aluminum processing, punching and extruding machines from Taiwan. We also pay personal visits to our clients so that we can get a feel for what will sell well in their target markets. After conducting surveys, we have learned that 98 percent of our clients are satisfied with our products and services. Partner with one of the earliest manufacturers of ABS cases by contacting us now.

What to look for during a factory visit

It is probably clear to most now that we strongly recommend on-site supplier evaluation prior to any purchase from a China factory. Whether you do it yourself or use the services of a third-party firm, the on-site visit is the only reliable way to fully understand the real capabilities of your potential supplier. Most problems you may face in the future can be perceived and often prevented at that stage.

But going on site is one thing, knowing what to look for is another. I thought it useful to describe the key areas any person visiting a potential China supplier should actively observe and even investigate. Each industry will have its own specifics, but they will all fall in the key areas below.

1st supplier evaluation key area: ability

The first question to get an answer to is: "Is this supplier able to make the product I need?" A good supplier will tell you if they are able to make a product in compliance with your requirements. However, many poor suppliers will bluff they way into your business, hoping to get away with it once you have placed an order.

To be able to make your product, a supplier needs each and all of these:

- The right production equipment and tools on the shop floor
- The right test equipment and measurement instruments on the shop floor to verify quality and tolerances
- Experience in purchasing the material or commercial parts required in your product
- Workers with the right skills, and in some cases, with right certifications (e.g. welding)
- Real experience in a similar product or technology

You know your own industry and you know which equipment and tools are key. You also probably know what type of testing and measurement are required.
Here are some typical examples of how suppliers fail or pass for one of these requirements:

- A supplier claims he can make an 800mm-long metal part that requires a dimension accuracy of ±0.1mm. But when he is asked to show how they will test whether the parts are within tolerances, he shows a class III tape measure that has a tolerance of more than ±1mm.
- A supplier of a very high-precision power supply could show a small stock of a specific current sensor used to control power stability. Most other companies visited for the same project had no such sensor or could not even find the agent selling them.

2nd supplier evaluation key area: consistency

The second question to get an answer to is: "Is the supplier able to make the product I need all the time?" Even when a factory has all the equipment, tools and experience to make a product, there is no guarantee that it will make quality products consistently. Consistent quality requires good and strict processes. Processes to make the right product the first time, as well as QC steps to catch before shipping any product that displays a problem.

To be able to make your product consistently, a supplier needs each and all of these:

- Clear and adapted production processes, including a good industrialization process, clear work instructions to workers, a reliable document and version management system, a faultproof system to select components and material used to make the final product
- Solid QC processes, including incoming good inspections, in-production QC at various steps of the fabrication process, reliable rejected parts system, final good and packaged good inspection
- Systematic data collection and storage, for instance, to allow problem root cause analysis in case product displays failure after shipment

This is harder to evaluate fully. All China suppliers will know what you want to hear and they will know what to answer to you when you ask about process.

The only way to get reliable information is to see evidence of the process on the shop floor. For instance:

Steel castings

- Seeing a specific caliper next to the machine where a metal part is formed is a decent evidence that some IPQC is done. Especially if you also see a record sheet attached to a production batch file.
- Seeing a dedicated location for QC, with dedicated technicians perfoming checks and completing a quality record sheet is a good evidence of IPQC.
- In electronic product factories, you may see automatic testing systems running in line. If you also can see that these data are stored in the ERP system and can be retrieved on a batch per batch basis, you got strong evidence as well.

Consistent quality requires good and strict processes. Processes to make the right product the first time and QC steps to catch before shipping any product that displays a problem.

All these do not have to be high tech. Many smaller suppliers will use paper work and simple filing systems, but they are able to catch problem and trace causes of the problems even if they do not have a fancy ERP system. Here, the spirit and mindset are at least as important as the technology.

3rd supplier evaluation key area: maturity

The third question to get an answer to is: "Are the supplier and its internal systems mature and solid enough to withstand a small crisis or the loss of a key person?" Many smaller companies are able to provide their customers with decent quality and good service, but this is based on a few experienced people only. For instance:

- A strong factory manager enforces the processes but if he is not there, suddenly the shop floor gets messy.
- A very experienced technician is able to set up the machines for your product but after he leaves the company, no one could make it any longer because documentation was not clear enough for the other workers.
- A very dynamic sales person has good project management skills and is able to get the factory do what his or her customers require. But when he moves to somewhere else, the replacement is more junior and has less influence on the factory. Client experience degrades quickly.

If point 2 is hard to evaluate, point 3 is even harder. It will be hard to be sure the problem will not arise at seemingly good factories. But it is possible to screen out poor factories where problems will certainly occur.

4th supplier evaluation key area: formal documents

Finally, what actually should be the first thing to be checked, "Is the supplier a properly registered and certified company?". This is the easiest thing to verify. You ask a copy of the documents and read them. Points to check include company official title/name (in Chinese), address (should be the same on all documents or there should be a very good reasons for the discrepancy) and validity dates. The minimum list of documents to check is:

- Company business licence: also check the business scope of the company and see that it covers the product you need
- Company ISO 9001 certificate: also check that it covers the product and services you need
- Any other company wide certificates such as ISO 14001, TS16949 or many others
- Export licence: this is not a must but if they have it, it should be in order.

But if everyone already covered all the four areas above when evaluating China suppliers, most of the horror stories we hear of would go away. All it takes is one day on site if you have experienced people to do the work. Probably a little longer if you are starting with this.

You can do it yourselves, for instance, by having your company quality or operation manager visit the factory, or you can use companies offering factory evaluation services.

Most of our clients ask us to do the work first and then send someone in China for an intensive final evaluation tour for the short list we kept.

Precision machined metal parts produced to ISO 13485:2003 standards

Thanks to fifty top-rated CNC lathes, eight machine centers and a wide range of state-of-art QC equipment, we have been renowned for our outstanding precision and quality metal parts since 1992. In order to live up to the markets' quality expectations, we are ISO 9001:2008-, ISO/TS 16949:2002-, ISO 13485:2003- and ISO 14001:2004-certified. While certification process of AS9100 is now underway. Unlike some of our competitors who use second-tier machinery to cut corners, we adopt top-notch production equipment from industry leaders such as Miyano and Cincom, as well as QC inspection equipment from Schneider.

Responsible sourcing in China

Strikes, suicides, accidents in China factories manufacturing for big brands have shocked the world and affected the brands' reputation as well as turnover. Responsible sourcing in China is starting to be taken into serious account by international brands and retailers. They understand that responsibility has a price and there are high risks in buying without checking carefully who the supplier is, the working conditions it offers, etc.

International trade has done a lot to lift people out of poverty. However, international human rights are sometimes neglected in favor of profits and low-cost production, including cheap labor. This is how China has been developing and many other countries would like to follow suit. Nevertheless, brands are more cautious now. They want to learn from past mistakes and avoid new scandals. Responsible sourcing aims to reduce social and environmental risks within the supply chain while taking advantage of lesser developed nations where labor cost is lower.

How to become a responsible buyer in China

There are some companies who specialize in this particular field. They work together with the retailers to improve livelihood along the supply chain, ensuring the retailers bring social benefits to the country they are working with.

Now, many small and medium companies have a limited budget to invest in consulting services. Indeed, only big companies can afford a long term investment. As an alternative solution, buyers should consider performing specific factory audits to source responsibly in China:

- Social audit based on SA8000
- Environmental audit based on 14000 ISO

The cost for each audit service is affordable, at $600 for services offered by inspection companies holding the AQSIQ license. At this price, the buyer can understand if its supplier respects human and labor rights as well as environmental conditions based on international standards.

Are factory audits "marketing" arguments

It depends on the brand. However, factory audits play an important role in responsible sourcing. They identify strengths and weaknesses of factories to outline the appropriate corrective actions to be taken.

Obviously, to be efficient, factory audits should be performed regularly to verify the good implementation of the corrective actions and they should seek for continuous improvement.

Warning

To ensure that the supplier is willing to work together with the buyer, there should be one basic condition: the business volume that the buyer will bring to the manufacturer has to be relevant.

And you, do you practice responsible sourcing in China or in other countries in Asia?

The Asia Quality Focus team is an international team of specialists in product inspections, factory audits, lab testing and product certifications for all kinds of consumer goods. To share experience and opinions in how to better and safer source in Asia, they created the Quality Control Blog.

Johannesburg city guide

Over a century ago, the discovery of gold in a range of rocky hills called the Witwatersrand utterly transformed the fortunes of the nearby city of Johannesburg. The city's massive gold reserves unearthed in 1886 resulted in an influx of immigrants and one of the world's major gold rushes in the 19th century. Today, South Africa's largest and most populous city continues to attract people who want to "realize their dreams of advancement and success," according to the Johannesburg Tourism Company, a marketing organization commissioned to promote the city as Africa's leading business and leisure tourism destination.

A relatively young city, the flourishing metropolis, also fondly called "Jozi" or "Joburg," is now home to around 7 million people. Johannesburg is a transit point for international and connecting flights served by the O.R. Tambo International Airport, the country's air transport hub being the largest and the busiest in the region.

Many pleasant surprises await your discovery in Joburg, from countless world-class attractions. The city boasts about 150 heritage sites including national monuments and historical attractions showing African and European influences in museums, art galleries, amusement centers, safari parks and a lot more.

Johannesburg guide

Dining and entertainment

Because Joburg is a transit point for most visitors to South Africa, the City of Gold has evolved into an exciting tourist destination offering a wide choice of dining and entertainment hangouts.

Head off to Sandton and Rosebank to dine at French or Japanese restaurants or choose from a variety of cafes at the Sandton City shopping complex, an upscale mall linked to Nelson Mandela Square. Sandton City has a number of fine-dining restaurants serving multi-ethnic cuisines.

A strip of bistros, bars, delicatessens and specialty food shops reflects the cosmopolitan Jozi dining atmosphere at 4th Avenue in Parkhurst. Joburg yuppies congregate at cafes around Melrose Arch, an exclusive urban development zone in northern Johannesburg. For an authentic African gastronomic adventure, dine at the famous Moyo, which serves a fusion of dishes from Ethiopia and Tunisia to Zululand. Or sit back and enjoy a Jozi stage play after a sumptuous meal at the Market Theater Complex in Newtown. Spot politicians, film stars and musicians at Gramadoela's, also in Newtown, with its exotic African and Cape Malay menu. According to its owners, Gramadoela's was built so that "no one would ever be turned away because of cultural barriers or any such pre-distinctions."

If you're into the newest trends in cuisine, sample food creations by young South African chefs at Melville sidewalk cafes such as Ant Café.

Joburg's entertainment scene is animated by local jazz music, touted as some of the best in the country. Relax your senses in the music's soothing rhythm at Kippie's in Newtown or jive with local bands at the Shikisha Bar or clubs in Melville.

If you feel like grooving to upbeat music, the Jozi club scene can unleash the party animal in you. The City of Gold sparkles at night with a dazzling array of hip nightspots to suit your fancy. Feel the bass of kwaito and hip-hop artists at Bassline in Newtown. Party to Cool Runnings' reggae beat in Melville. Or request and dance to your favorite music at DJ's Bar Lounge in Soweto.

Shopping

The City of Gold beckons shopaholics with a variety of stores selling souvenir items, specialty products, luxury items and more.

Surprise your friends with unique South African wood carvings, beaded dolls, toys and other handicrafts at flea markets such as African Craft Market and Rooftop Market in Rosebank, Bruma Lake Flea Market in Bruma, Bryanston Organic & Natural Market in Bryanston or Crafters Market in Clearwater.

Newly built shopping malls frequented by most locals and tourists are Eastgate Mall, The Mall of Rosebank, Hyde Park Corner and Fourways Mall. Sandton City caters to sophisticated shoppers with a taste for designer fashion labels including Louis Vuitton, Gucci, Armani, Mont Blanc, Cartier, Fendi, Lacoste and more. The shopping complex also houses stalls for jewelry, electronic goods and novelty shops.

For bookworms, Melville's Main Road and Seventh Streets boast second-hand bookshops. Antique collectors can drop by curio shops in Norwood such as Grant Avenue, Art Africa and 62 Tyrone Avenue in Parkview. Craft shops abound at the Giraffe Centre, Second Avenue and Melville. Handicraft stalls at the Moyo restaurant and Zoo Lake in Parkview sell products made by poor communities in South Africa.

Carlton Panorama

The 202-meter tall Carlton Centre on Commissioner Street is one of the country's highest structures. The view from the 50th floor is a breathtaking landscape of the bustling city.

Gold Reef City

The late 19th-century Witwatersrand gold rush is depicted at the Gold Reef City amusement park. Journey to the past as you discover old houses, public buildings, shops and Johannesburg's first stock exchange, as well as the gold-rich Crown Mines.

Hermann Eckstein Park

Hermann Eckstein Park is a public recreation area housing two museums and the Johannesburg zoo. The eponymous Hermann Eckstein was a South African miner, banker and philanthropist.

Rissick Street

Intersecting Market Street, Rissik Street is where you can find two of the oldest buildings still standing in South Africa – the Rissik Street Post Office, erected in 1897, and the neo-Renaissance style City Hall, built in the early 1900s.

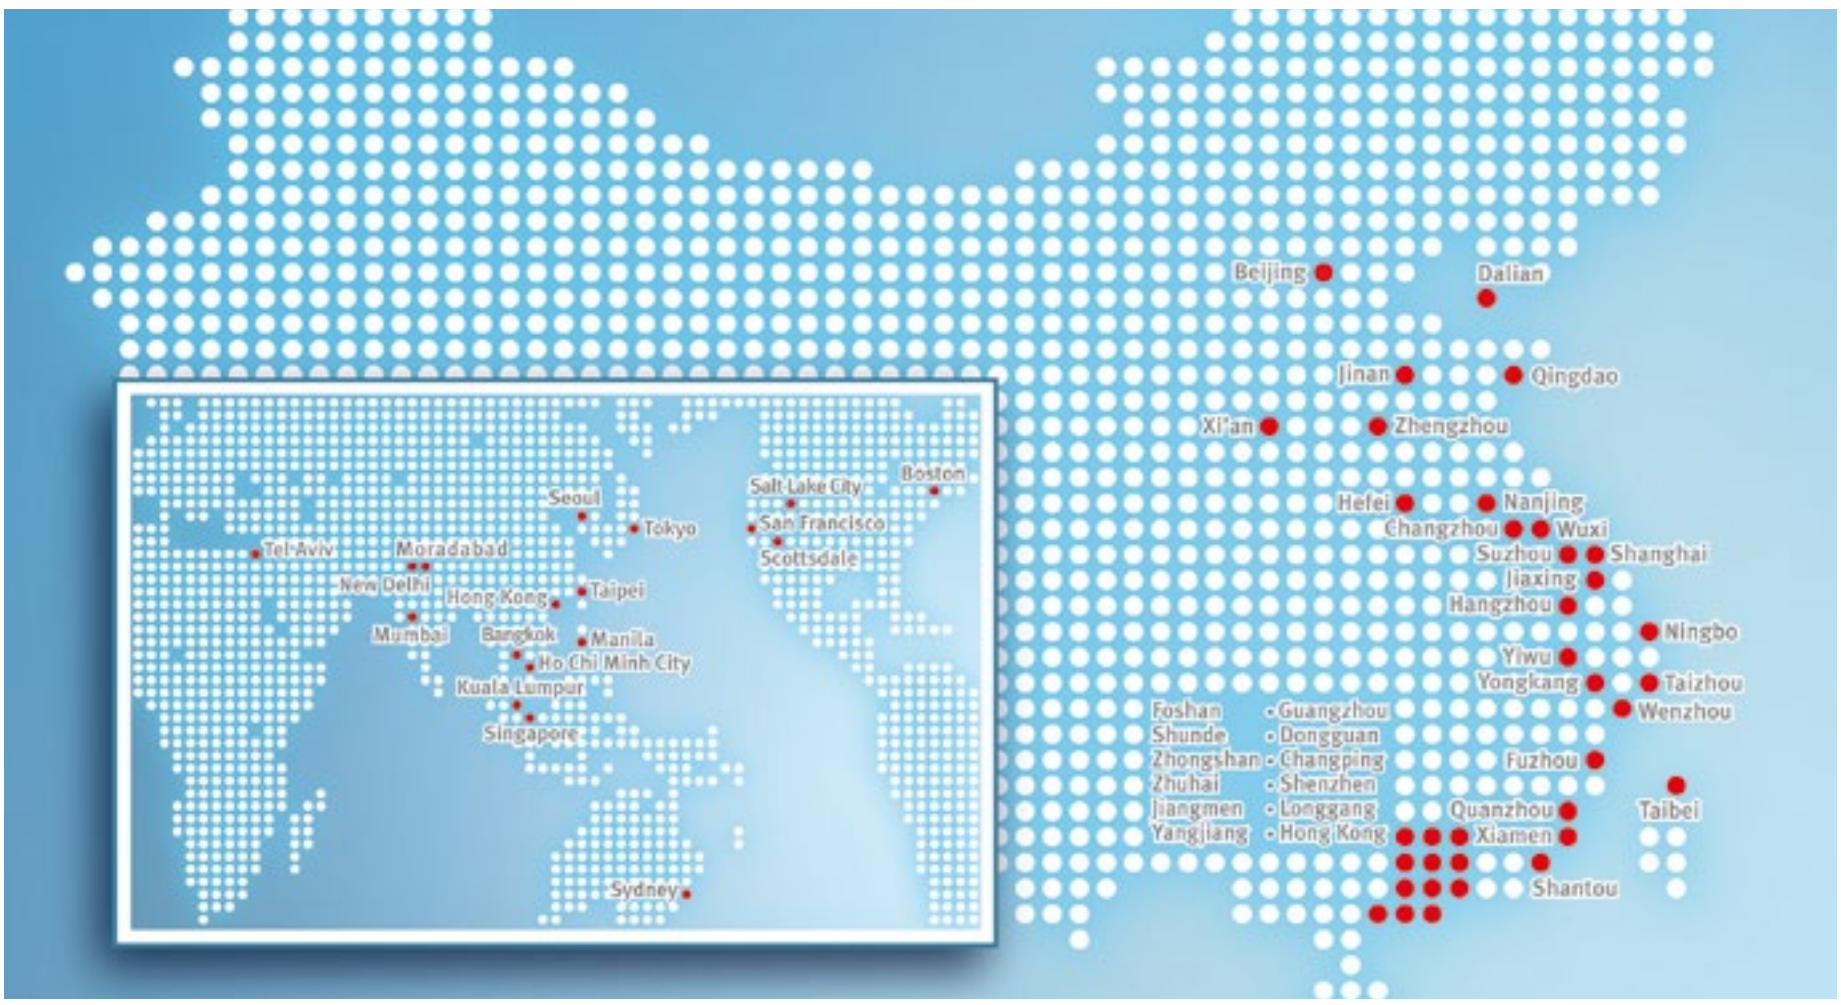

Lion Park

A visit to South Africa is incomplete without a safari adventure. Explore the wildlife in a safari vehicle traversing the Lion Park in the heart of the Gauteng-Tshwane complex. The famous park is home to countless antelopes and more than 80 lions and other carnivores including cheetahs, wild dogs, brown and spotted hyenas and jackals. You can also walk or interact with different animals for the ultimate safari experience.
